THE PUPPY MILL PROJECT

Hey Party Animals: As you get ready to celebrate Mother's Day this weekend, take a moment to think about puppy mills. Why? There are thousands of mother dogs left in horrible conditions and trapped in puppy mills as breeding machines while their cute little puppies are sold in pet stores, the internet or through newspaper ads.

One group headquartered in Chicago that is leading the way on raising awareness is The Puppy Mill Project. The Puppy Mill Project was founded in 2009 as a way to raise the level of education for consumers on what a puppy mill is.

This Saturday, the Puppy Mill Project is hosting a fundraiser to help combat this issue and raise public awareness. One of the features of the event is Chicago's premiere screening of "Madonna of the Mills". A documentary of a woman's crusade to expose puppy mills. The event will also have dinner, dancing and of course dessert. If you don't have a date...don't worry..there will be a kissing booth (wink wink.. its a dog lovers kissing booth.)

According to Janine Jenkins of The Puppy Mill Project this will be an annual event to raise much needed funds to educate and raise awareness about puppy mills.

Saturday, May 7
7 p.m. Screening Begins (Doors open at 6: 15 p.m.)
